What is an Access code?

When your teachers share classes with you, you'll get an access code via email or printed note. Access codes are long strings of numbers and letters that you need in order to see your grades, attendance, and class calendars.

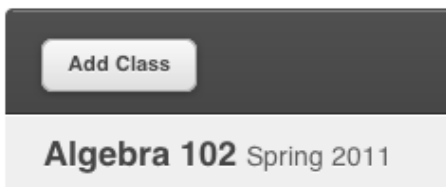

Access codes are specific to teacher accounts and classrooms, so you can only use your codes, not your friends' or parents'.

Note: Teachers must provide access codes. If your teacher is not on LearnBoost, spread the news and get them to join today!

Adding a classroom

Once you have an account, link your classes directly via email or click the "Add Class" button on your LearnBoost dashboard. This will present you with a pop-up where you can enter in the access code that your teacher has given you.

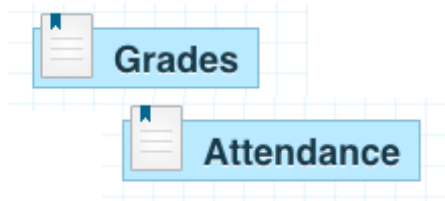

Make sure to enter the code exactly as it's written, since codes are case sensitive and unique.

Get in touch with teachers

Have a question about how your teachers are using LearnBoost? Send them a note! Teachers' contact info can be found in every class.

Navigating your account

LearnBoost is like an online progress report, where you can see exactly how you are performing in class and stay in the loop with upcoming assignments and events. Here's a look at what teachers can share with students:

Grades - see scores on all your assignments as they're graded.

Attendance - take a look at your attendance record to make sure you're getting to class on time.

Comments - teachers may write and share comments with parents & students, so keep an eye on the "grades" section for notes!

Calendar - view class calendars and check out upcoming assignments.
